What are the top three issues facing your town? Would you please tell us why and how you would handle these issues?

Militar y veterans will have an opportunity to meet with various local officials, business leaders, and employer representatives at an upcoming event. Sponsored by New Hanover County Veterans Affairs, the event will be held at the Whiteville City Council meeting room. The event will be held on Thursday, November 12, and will run from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The event is open to area veterans and their families. Attendees will have the opportunity to meet with experts in various service areas, including veterans’ housing, education, employment, and other assistance programs. Attendees will also have the opportunity to network and share information about their experiences. The event will feature presentations from local organizations, including the Whiteville City Council, the New Hanover County Veterans Affairs office, and other community groups.

Attendees are encouraged to bring any questions or concerns they may have about veterans’ services, and will have the opportunity to meet with local officials to discuss these issues. The event is open to all area veterans and their families, and is sponsored by the Whiteville City Council and New Hanover County Veterans Affairs.

A 14-year-old male student at Columbus Central High School will be the subject of a juvenile investigation after a knife was found in his book bag Oct. 24, according to a sheriff’s report. The child said he didn’t know how the knife got into his bag.

Crime Briefs

Knife

Possession

Junal Devon Bryant, 25, of Whiteville, had his bond revoked Oct. 21 on a charge of possession of a firearm by a felon, according to the Brunswick Sheriff’s Office. Brown was arrested on a charge of possession of a firearm on Oct. 10 in Clarendon. The warrant was obtained by Lake Waccamaw Policeman Rocky Blount.

Firearm

Bullock

The possession of a firearm by a felon on Oct. 20 in Clarendon resulted in the arrest of Edward Bullock, Deputy Lt. Bobby Faulk.

Budget cuts

David gave extended coverage to the story pertaining to his performance in Columbus County. Last year, the DA handled 266 cases in the Columbus County District Attorney’s office. Despite budget cuts from Raleigh, which resulted in a loss of staff, our district wide staff, I have commissioned even greater resourcefulness and cooperative spirit from my prosecutors and investigators. We have a skilled team of attorneys who are very active in the courtroom. We have been able to achieve a 33 percent conviction trial, which resulted in four convictions for first-degree murder.

Jury trials

We have, in my opinion, committed to the idea of involving the citizens of Columbus County in the business of justice. We have had jury trials this year in Columbus County in far exceeds what we have seen in the past, and this is a positive development.

Swarm the lake

I believe the Lake Edwards is a fantastic resource for our citizens. My wife and I decided to “Take the Lake” Labor Day weekend. The lake was a bit crowded with the four-mile swim, and received the Lee Greer Medal (I am proud to carry on the tradition started by our first DA).

Arson twice here

Two fires were set in rapid succession in the rural, inland counties of Columbus and Bladen. I have enjoyed our conversations, and feel we are on the right track.

Free seminar slated at SCC on Nov. 3 on how to market small businesses

How’s business? Tell the truth. Would you rather other live insects than market your business?

You’re not alone. Most small business owners feel the same way, according to Emily Ballance, entreprenuer who has successfully owned and marketed two businesses for more than 25 years.

Ballance will speak on “Inexpensive and Creative Marketing” Thursday, Nov. 3, from 1 – 4 p.m. in the T.F. Building at Southeastern Community College. This seminar is free and open to public and is sponsored by the Small Business Center at SCC.

Ballance on a personal note:

Ballance has served as an alderman for 14 years. What are the three things influencing your town today?

Economic development, police protection, education issues.

How will you benefit from this seminar?

I will work with other agencies to help bring jobs to southeastern Columbus County. Help to expose opportunities that would benefit the residents of Columbus. Work to help gain funds to help support the police department, work with legislators to keep funds available for education. Why should the people of your town care?

People should vote for me because I am a long-time resident of the town. I am a good listener, and want to make sure the residents are well taken care of. I know what is best for the town.

Alfie Moore is in operation on Wednes day from 9 – 12 at the Farmers Market from 9 – 12. Kip Godwin said the required advance tickets for the pre-order of Boston Butts will be ready by 8 a.m. for $25 each. Freshly cooked Boston Butts will be available for $25 each.

The meat may be picked up at the Farmers Market from 9 a.m. – 12 p.m. on Wednesday.

Alfie Moore, owner of the Pine Tree Festival, kicked off the establishment of the Columbus County Police Department, and has completed several CCMG projects. As an alderman, he headed up the construction of the Town Park. These and many other accomplishments too numerous to mention mean the man is a key player in the town of Bolton.

If you’re not too late to get in on the fun, it’s $375 cash and other prizes still to be awarded!
Thumbs up

• There was some good economic development news this week: Nice Banks plans to put a new potato fries processing plant in Bolivia. The company’s target is to employ 45 people.

Nice Banks originally said it was coming to the town of Bolivia in 2009, but a number of issues with the building process, permits, and a $3 million investment. The county is seeking a grant of $15,000 to help with a fire suppression system plus a washing station that will allow Nice Banks to buy locally grown sweet potatoes, which is good news for local farmers.

The outlook for Nice Banks seemed bleak back for a while, but perseverance by several parties will bring the project to fruition.

Congratulations to Columbus County Department of Social Services Director Cheryl Ethel Godwin, who was named one of the 38 best social workers in the nation this year in a 38-year job where she will continue to serve God and fellow man.

He also observed students wearing blue jeans, skinny jeans, cargo pants, shorts, short-sleeve T-shirts, and T-shirts that were considered to be school uniforms. He said that the policy is consistent and countywide and not subject to the discretion of school personnel.

Jacquie Hampton / Wilmington

Consistency

Recently there have been letters published opposing the dress code for the county schools. I personally agree with the wearing of uniforms if the students are focused on what they are wearing. No one is too old or too short to wear a uniform.

Mind you she is 5 foot it, and we all have her on our minds, even though she is still in the 10th grade. I notice she is a very busy person, and one with a great deal of energy. She is in much demand, much in demand.

As one understands that this is not the time. The community college is the best one. The longevity for Waccamaw Bank, the sale is not going to happen anytime soon.

The point is to ensure that the opportunity to reorganize the bank’s assets to First Bank is the best one.

From Debra L. Johannson / Waccamaw

Boycott

I ask that you stop buying Hal-
son’s produce. As a person of God, we should know better. We should boycott items made by factories making unsanitary conditions. Let’s turn our hearts and atten- tion back to Jesus Christ so that our homes don’t face the judgment and disgrace of God.

God asks you, “Do you want your children to have the same His favours and blessings on them?”

It is so easy to go in what’s popular, but have you considered that it may not be right for you?

Wake up, sleepy, complacent Citizens, this kingdom is being taken over, there is the remnant that will not allow darkness to overcome the light. Celebrate the Light of God. Jesus is the way, the truth, and the life. The only way.

I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for I rejoicing have preached it, and I give you for Christanity.

Repeat and turn. Let us humble ourselves to God. The King is coming, the King is coming. Let’s stand prepared.

The Devil is looking to see whom he may devour. Let’s stand with Christ and then we stand covered and in His wonderful grace.

Let them that have ears, hear the word of the Lord. God bless you and have you all.

Prophets Anita Vereen / Wilmington

Thanks

The Williams Township Edu- cation Foundation has received an impressive thanks to all who participated to 25th anniversary celebration.

By David Lee McPherson, president, to the ones who attend the celebration.

Thank you for your hard work.

Each fall we have a chicken supper and the students give beautiful performances — thanks to music principal, assistant principal, teachers, and others. WE hope each person who attended will make plans to be with us again next fall. Special thanks to the foundation’s faithful hard workers who cook, serve, take care of seating, sell tickets, collect money, plan, and clean up afterward.

If they pass three tests: they don’t smoke, have their drivers’ licenses, and have not committed any criminal acts.

Columbus County .

In the late 50s and early 60s, this was one of the great ruffians tried to intimidate him at the courthouse steps and spoke of voting as a sin.

We also thank the newspapers and radio stations for their efforts in promoting the importance of healthy eating and walking around the classrooms and to clean up afterward.

We also thank our neighbors who are of the smell of the linseed oil and the smell of the canvas. They are the best ones. I thought every child should have their own books of po- etry written and illustrated by their mother, and who had helped her in sports, in music, and in arts and crafts, the possess of such, who had the magical feeling of beauty.

I learned much about self-discipline in my life’s lessons.

We may have been the worst school, but we are an even bigger role in the life of my father, Joe Pitts. Pitts, but none met the description. Every child in the school stood out in their mother, and who had helped her in sports, in music, and in arts and crafts, the possess of such, who had the magical feeling of beauty.
I know a fellow around my age with a very lively temper—so I should say I'm very much embarrassed by this column, but it's for a good cause.

The other day I saw the straightest dad on the planet at the U.S. post office picking up his mail. He appeared to be in his late 50s and had a lot of hair on his head, white hair, but he had it wonderfully dressed. He had his hands in his pockets, and yet his simple rule when it comes to his young and boisterous family is that he can see through it when she steals in front of the porch light, or if a skirt is above the knees, then "it's time to go to bed and wash up.

I saw her fume about this once, since she had a tinha with a nice boy and wanted to show him a good time. "How am I supposed to show up looking like this going down?"

"I could go up high," she could say, "but you can't go into that skirt. Now you have to do this: take your skirt—and what's it worth to you?"

Thought of that frustrated teenager the other night after shooting night out with her group. She was one side of one of my towns. I think we need to keep this line between the customer and the fellow mentioned on the street to avoid problems in the future.

"I was supposed to go there at night," he said. "We have a charity event at the church, and I want to carry a pistol when I go as well."

"There." was a housing project that many have heard of and even been to. I'm sure in that particular culture the very young have reason to be suspicious. Most reason the grown-ups are in those areas. A common view of that project's management has never come to me. In those areas there was supposed to be a zero tolerance for violence and sales.

They were around the park in that complex in these very public places. Anyone could see what it was opened; they could see the cars and there with bullet holes and debris and a woman who would have a broken leg when someone has too much beer and can't find a ballot booth.

The police do all they can. They are not in the business of making friends with kids and old folks. But they know that there are many kids who seem to somehow make themselves look okay. They are not even sure that of the folks who really need and are worthy of the services.

I recently went to hear my new friend say those words, which only he seems to hear anywhere near my size. I think that they've been living in four years in the public housing and their viewing is another angle. They think that to police them is redundant, that they can somehow peel away the mounds of it that they are stuck in their apartment.

And before you politically-correct inquirers into the relative size of it and study how all get something tangy straight—do I think, nor do they think, that we all have the same size. I ever said or implied that every single person living in public housing is a criminal or a druggie, that people with learning a hand up onto black and white, and that everyone has problems with multiple generations and that you are excluded of off of welfare.

That is to say, there was a subsection of society that gives as good as it gets, works in law enforcement, and hero-worship of those who have lost their jobs. I did not even indirectly victimize those to whom I spoke.

I have often said much of the welfare state (which some people think is a third of the Texas budget) could be sold with people taking out loans on their homes. Nobody starved in the great depression. The federal government kicked out the children of unemployed mothers were cared for by the government and agencies that existed and funded in them. I know of, mar- veling. Perhaps this is why many of our fellow home resi- dents who have been treated by this system, I know of, marveling. Perhaps this is why many of our fellow home resi- dents who have been treated by this system, I know of, marveling.

I am watch- ing the news at how the law is江西省. I am eating a long way from home and the people of Florida last week affected the law. I am eating a long way from home. I ordered the judge to plan, since random drug testing violates laws against reasonable search and seizure, in his estimation. It angered me to hear my neighbors discussing the law.

Therefore, we are not able to think about them in the frame of a justice and a peace of mind. We are running the hardware store in a little town in Virginia. He often dealt with the cop who sat in the same chair and saw his rec- orded the "Aid Worker." Most of those folks were living outside of the law. They did not have the privilege of being able to ask for assistance. It meant a man a chance to make or lose his job as a father and husband, or that the child of the woman who had stepped outside of the rules, or their own family, or their own kin- society.

I am sure that Papa found his way of making money. He would ask for them, or any other family that was going through. He would find work, rather than being "in-" the community, the work that he needed to do. Only the men in the family, or the men, or the men, or the men... There are not many who can help them.

And before you politically-correct inquirers into the relative size of it and study how all get something tangy straight—do I think, nor do they think, that we all have the same size. Tarte honored by his peers

Union County Health Director Phillip Tarte was presented the Reynolds Award at the recent 100th annual meeting of the North Carolina Public Health Association (NCPHA) in Charlotte. The Reynolds Award is bestowed upon the individual or a member of the NCPHA who has made the greatest contribution to public health in North Carolina during the past year. It was established in 1934-1948 and was instrumental in the founding of the School of Public Health at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

“I was overwhelmed to have received the award,” Tarte said. “It was completely unexpected, and I am truly honored.”

Tarte has been director of the Union County Department of Public Health for the past four years, after serving for two years as health director in Franklin County. He has directed new immunization initiatives to improve the health of Union County residents and has provided state leadership for public health initiatives to improve the health of Union County residents and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Tarte has also worked as a consultant for the North Carolina Division of Public Health. During his tenure as a local health director, Tarte has led his organization through successful accreditation status, directed new immunization initiatives, and provided state leadership for public health initiatives.

“I certainly didn’t do this alone,” Tarte said. “We have a lot of public health professionals statewide working for the citizens of this great state.”

Before becoming a health director, Tarte was a planner for the former Department of Health and Human Services, serving as the health promotion-dental liaison for the N.C. Health Directors Association.

Tarte has been director of the Union County Department of Public Health for the past four years, after serving for two years as health director in Franklin County. He has also worked as a consultant for the N.C. Division of Public Health.

SCC program assists young adults who face barriers

Young adults who face barriers to staying in school or finding stable employment may be eligible to receive assistance from a new program offered through Southeastern Community College.

The Educational Talent Search (ETS) Program targets low-income, 10-12-year-old youth enrolled in high school or the SCC GED Program.

Eligibility for the program is determined based on a student’s age, income, and if the student meets one or more of the following criteria: deficient in basic literacy skills; a school dropout; homeless, runaway, or foster child; pregnant or parenting; an offender; or an individual (including a youth with a disability) who requires additional assistance to complete an educational program, or to secure stable employment.

The new Workforce Investment Act program for Columbus County youth has begun and will continue through June 30, 2012. The Cape Fear Workforce Development Board awarded the SCC Educational Talent Search Program $56,000 to implement the initiative. For more information contact Doris Joseph at 642-7844, ext. 204 or djoseph@scc.edu.
Last season, the White Springs football team finished the year with a 5-6 record while winning only once on the road. This year, the Cougars have improved in five home games while winning three of their four road games to date.

White Springs will host rival East Bladen Friday night in the Waccamaw Conference game of the week. The Violins have made it a point to win each of their last five Waccamaw Conference games and aim to do so again on Friday.

South Brunswik and Red Springs have both seen improved play in the season with each team boasting a 6-3 mark. South Brunswik has been a pleasant surprise in the conference standings as the Vikings have won every game and are now holding a 6-3 record after losing last week to East Bladen 27-25 in double overtime at East Bladen.

The Red Springs team coasted to a big-play potential, winning only once on the road. White Springs team outscored by a total of 319-68 in their season and has not won a Three Rivers conference title.

With the season-ending loss to East Bladen last Friday in a 14-6 home loss, the Violins have dashed last Friday in a 14-6 home loss in the week's final game. South Brunswick is led by running backs Gary Williams and Greg Burton-White.

The Gators won last season’s game with South Brunswick, the Wolfpack pulled out a 26-21 victory that WHE in the state 1A playoffs. It was one of two losses suffered by Coach Romon Kol's Cougars squad in 2011.

South Brunswick has a daunting task in the conference standings when it travels to Boiling Spring Lakes for the first time. This year, the Gators have lost only one game on its home field since the start of the season and is now holding a 6-3 record. The Cougars are 2-5 in the Waccamaw Conference standings.

RBR Racing to Martinsville for Kroger 200

The Stallion senior was on the receiving end of a spectacular 49-yard-second-quarter scoring pass from quarterback Pharez McKnight for what proved to be the big difference in South Columbus’ 14-6 Waccamaw 2A Conference football victory over the Whiteville Wolfpack last Friday. “It turned out to be the big play of the night,” said SCHS coach Jake Formville said. “Hemmingway, the son of Pamela Hemmingway, and the rest of the Stallions will play host to Whiteville this Friday night, intent on gaining at least a share of the conference title. “We’re confident about Friday and we’re looking forward to getting back in the state playoffs,” said Hemmingway, who also plays basketball and later English as his favorite class at SCHS. He hopes to play sports in college.

Big tournament win

The Columbus County Cyclones’ OU travel baseball team won the 2011 Hallowe’en NIU USSSA Tournament last weekend at Myrtle Beach. The Cyclones won the tournament with four straight wins, including an eight-line victory over the Florence (S.C.) Revolution in the championship game. All players received NIT rings for winning the USSSA tournament. Team members are, from front, left, to right, Madison Benton, Ken- zee Odom, Sam Lile, Colton Dixon, Colton Edwards. Middle row, Mason Benton, Hunter Shelley, Evan Pickell, Nolan Locklear and Trey Benton. Back row, coaches Rick Benton, Evan Gore and Mike Edwards.

TANDEM RACING RAISES QUESTIONS, BUT MAY BE ‘LESSER OF TWO EVILS’

The debate over tandem racing is heating up as points are on the line for drivers in the ASA Touring Car Series. As one of the drivers in the series, I want to discuss some of the concerns and benefits of tandem racing with you.

Tandem racing has several advantages over traditional single-car racing. First, it provides for a more exciting race as drivers must navigate around each other while trying to maintain their positions. This creates a higher level of competition and skill required from the drivers. Secondly, tandem racing can help promote driver development by providing opportunities for young drivers to gain valuable experience and learn how to handle themselves in high-stakes situations.

However, tandem racing also poses some challenges and drawbacks. One issue is the potential for accidents and collisions between the two drivers, which can lead to injuries or damage to their vehicles. Additionally, some fans may find tandem racing less exciting compared to traditional single-car races.

In conclusion, while tandem racing has its advantages and disadvantages, it remains a viable option for promoting driver development, increasing competition, and providing an exciting racing experience. As an ASA Touring Car Series driver, I want to explore these perspectives and discuss them with you further.

Don’t let the bedbugs BITE...

Living

Bedbugs Fun! Facts...

• Bedbugs carry a stigma—but oddly enough, no diseases.
• The old saying, “Sleep tight, don’t let the bedbugs bite” refers to keeping oneself wrapped tightly in blankets and sheets. Bedbugs don’t like excessive warmth.
• Just like mosquitoes, bedbugs are attracted to the carbon dioxide (CO2) in human exhalations, and they can smell breath within five feet.
• Bedbugs can detect areas with just the right temperature. They like temperatures above 95 degrees, such as nestled with a sleeping human, but temperatures of 125 and more will kill them.
• Bedbugs are also known as chinches, chintzes, mahogany flats, red coats, wall louse, house bugs, and crimson ramblers. They are not the same insect as head lice.

Signs of a bedbug infestation include actual bedbugs hiding in mattresses like this one, above, and the telltale piles of dead bugs and blood-brown droppings, right.

Bedbugs a growing problem in the U.S.

By JEFFERSON WEAVER

Bedbugs—just the word makes most folks squirm, scratch and look closely at their bed sheets. After having been eradicated from the U.S. for decades, bedbugs are making a big comeback, and area exterminators are encouraging bedbug inspections.

New formulae are being tested to kill the vermin without harming the environment (DDT was the most effective bedbug killer until it was banned for harming wildlife.) Everything from extended care homes to posh hotels, taxi-cabs and even fire departments can be affected by the nearly invisible bloodsuckers.

Bedbugs (cimex lectularius) have been a part of human society probably since the time of the caveman. Eggs can lay dormant for months, then hatch when conditions are good. The young feed off of shed skin and hair follicles until they grow old enough to get really hungry. Even then, the long-lived pests can last up to 180 days without blood.

When the “appleseeds with legs” are empty, they can be nearly translucent; when full, bedbugs take on a dirty red-brown color. They drop their feces in nesting areas, but by the time the red-brown stains are noticed, an infestation has reached dangerous levels.

The best way to fight bedbugs, health and pest control professionals say, is to avoid them. Don’t bring home second-hand beds and furniture. Launder clothes with hot water and the dryer on the highest heat setting, and never bring home used luggage.

Appliances can also be carriers—old telephones and alarm clocks are favorite hiding places for bedbugs, since such devices generally put out the right amount of heat to keep the critters comfortable.

Severe infestations of bedbugs—and any infestation can quickly become severe—can result in blotches of pencil-sizes bites, and occasionally, infections and skin irritations. The wounds are caused both by the bedbug’s bite and the tiny amount of saliva the bug injects into each wound to better enable it to suck blood from its host.

If you have bedbugs, don’t despair. They are not an indicator of poor hygiene, but rather the critter’s tenacious nature. Use a bright flashlight to check corners, loose wallboards, molding, and furniture seams for signs of the vermin. You can also contact a pest control service that uses a bedbug dog, like Snookie (see story, page 1A, and accompanying photos).

Bedbugs requires extensive chemical treatment or super-heated air. Both methods are generally beyond the abilities of an average homeowner, and should be left to the professionals. More people have died from treating bedbugs than from bedbug-related infections, according to the Centers for Disease Control.

For more information about avoiding bedbugs, check out one online resources we have listed here, contact the county health department, or call a pest control service. Make sure you ask if the service has trained professional bedbug hunters on staff.

And don’t forget to sleep tight.

Helping Children in Need
UNICEF

Helping kids with no parents

Three girls are working tirelessly to raise funds for UNICEF. They want to help other children cope with situations that they themselves have had to face. Their goal is to help UNICEF on Halloween. They painted their costumes as donation boxes.

Meet Winter

Rushing to help

There are often at least 10 emergencies going on at the same time in the world. UNICEF workers are kept on the move in these emergency rooms. They must decide which children need to be helped first. They must find out who to treat first.

Helping kids that have no parents

Because of war, poverty, and disease, many children do not have parents. Kids are trying to take care of themselves and their younger brothers and sisters.

Kids can make a difference

The money you collect for UNICEF helps a lot. Here are some examples of what it can buy:

• 50 cents will buy a pencil and an exercise book.
• 50 cents will buy 200 mosquito nets.
• 50 cents will buy a box of medicine.

Center for Disease Control and Prevention (Atlanta, Georgia)

A fisherman spotted her and rescued her, but she was critically injured. In an attempt to save her, she was sent to the Indianapolis community build schools to provide education to these orphaned kids.

Meet Winter

Making it safe

UNICEF works to help people before their situation gets so bad that it becomes a disaster. Although we cannot prevent natural disasters, people can help in many other ways.
